

Local Communities and Groups

Discover

People's Collection Wales is a place of discovery where you will find an abundance of material relating to local history and heritage. It also gives you the tools to tell your own, and your community's stories.

Miners waiting to go into a mass meeting at the Empire Theatre, Tonypanyd, November 1910, during the Cambrian Combine strike – copyright National Museum Wales

Contribute

People's Collection Wales is an online hub where you can contribute memories and stories helping to create a more complete picture of Wales and preserving the wonders of the past for future generations.

Contributing items to People's Collection Wales is easy – simply create an account and upload your item. Need a little guidance? Information on how to utilise all aspects of the website can be found in the Help Centre.

All content uploaded to People's Collection Wales is checked for copyright and data protection to ensure that the site is a reliable source of information about Wales.

Free training sessions on developing digital content are available to community groups. Contact casgliadywerin@llgc.org.uk or (01970) 632 500 for further details.

Share

People's Collection Wales facilitates the sharing of stories, memories and objects within communities. It encourages people to engage with the past, and to contribute their own stories, creating a shared legacy.

Silver Jubilee Party in Penparcau 1977 – copyright Ann Duggan

A street party in Penparcau, Aberystwyth to celebrate Prince Andrew and Sarah Ferguson's Royal Wedding – copyright Ann Duggan

No water in Llansawel 6 October 1959 – copyright Colin Hayward